Spectator Behaviour Policy

The Summer Hill Lakers Netball Club expects all spectators to behave in a manner that reflects the values of fairness, respect, equity, and supportiveness towards all individuals involved in the matches.

Fairness is an essential component of the club's spectator behaviour expectations. Spectators are expected to respect the rules of the game and the decisions made by the officials, while avoiding any behaviour that may be deemed unfair towards the opposition or their own team.

Respect is another important value that the club expects all spectators to uphold. This includes showing respect towards the players, coaches, officials, and other spectators, as well as avoiding any behaviour that may be deemed disrespectful or offensive.

Equity is also a crucial aspect of the club's expectations for spectator behaviour. Spectators are expected to treat all individuals involved in the matches equally, regardless of their gender, race, ethnicity, religion, or any other personal characteristics.

Supportiveness is the final value that the club expects all spectators to uphold. This includes cheering and encouraging their team in a positive and respectful manner, while also showing support and respect towards the opposition.

By adhering to these values, the club aims to create a positive and inclusive environment for all individuals involved in the matches, and to promote the values of sportsmanship, respect, and fair play.
